The students of the college are making all preparations to depart for their respective homes and occupations for the summer, many of them have already gone. The attendance at M. V. C. has been larger this year than last by perhaps twenty-five, and the work of the students is reported very satisfactory to the faculty.

A submarine boat with its crew of twenty-seven men was sunk in the English channel Thursday by being run down by a passenger steamer. Judging from newspaper reports, the accident was the result of gross carelessness on the part of the steamer's crew and to add to the horror very little effort was made to rescue the unfortunate mariners.

It looks good in passing around the city to note the substantial improvements on every hand. A number of business houses are putting in new fronts, enlarging space and generally modernizing their appearance. The same thing may be said about residences all over town. Let the good work go on. Nothing so favorably impresses strangers who visit a place than to mark up-to-dateness, thrift, enterprise and neatness everywhere.

The editor has frequently been joked that as soon as he has more Democratic subscribers than Republicans he will "flip over" and change it to a Democratic paper. We believe our large Democratic support is an indication of a more reasonable and tolerant spirit prevailing as well as a tribute to a carefully edited paper. We are conducting this paper on merits nearly as possible and will continue in the future to give the biggest dollar's worth possible and hope neither Republican nor Democrat may have cause to feel that he is being short-changed.

It is likely that a very large vote will be polled at the state election on account of the prohibition amendment to be presented the voters if the present intention is carried out. The people are interested in the question and are sure to go to the polls. It is argued by some that the large vote will benefit one party and by others that it will be of benefit to another. We do not care what party receives the benefit as long as the voters go to the poll, vote, and take sufficient interest to see that their votes are honestly counted and recorded. This is a country where the majority is expected to rule. We are satisfied with the decision of the majority, but we want every vote cast honestly counted. Governor Hadley has been actively at work during his term of office cleaning up the large cities of the state so that people can have an honest expression at the polls. It is believed Missouri is to have an honest and fair election, and if she does, no matter what the views of the majority on the prohibition question or any other question the majority should rule. —Warrensburg Standard Herald.

The reason why some people leave the farm and go to the city lies deeper than a mere whim. It cannot be overcome with a "move ment," until that reason is removed. In a word it is, machinery. Not until machinery began to develop did the age of cities come. The machines were located in the towns because towns afforded better means of exchange, and the towns were built to facilitate exchange. Manufacture has developed abnormally, until it exceeds in importance farming by more than double, and as manufacturing has increased the cities have grown. Manufacturing is now a matter of monopoly, and as an inevitable result the cities rule the country. But the cities have the machinery of entertainment, of convenience, of instruction, developed more perfectly than the country, consequently they draw from the country. In that the machinery is well developed there they are civilizers. In that mastery has come through the private ownership of the machines, they are barbaric and corrupting. The conquest of the country will not come because someone plans it but because machinery must develop to the point where lit will organize and run the farm. When that comes there will be no rural sections properly speaking, and if corrupting influence of private control is ended in co-operation the multitudinous interests which make possible vast aggregations of men will pass away and there will no longer be cities as we know them today.—Appeal to Reason.

Protect the Birds

This is the season of the year when our bird friends are nesting and multiplying their feathered kind.

Did you ever stop to think what this country would be without birds? We are only beginning to learn that these flitting many colored denizens of the air sustain a vital relation to our agricultural interests. It is a scientific fact which should be widely known that vegetation will disappear with the birds.

Prof. William Dutcher, the most eminent bird man in this country and by the way, an honored scientist, and a successful business man of New York, makes the following statement bearing on the protection which birds—even somewhat birds—give to our food crops and therefore to our material prosperity.

Looks Good for Slater

It begins to look as if the C. & A. railway company will give Slater quite a boom this summer by way of constructing a new round house, machine shop, and perhaps a new depot building, the last of which especially would add much to the comfort of the traveling public to and from that town. The railroad company is unloading some heavy machinery at Slater and C. L. Benedict, the C. & A. agent there, has received the following letter from General Auditor W. D. Tucker, at Chicago, which is given to the public:

Chicago, May 18, 1910.

Agent,
Slater, Mo.

Dear Sir:—We have recently entered into a contract with Westinghouse Church Kerr & Co. for the construction of round-house machine shop and other work at Slater. There will be more or less material shipped into Slater for use in the work—bills on such material carrying C. & A. charges or advance charges should be forwarded direct to this office.

Yours Truly,

W. D. Tucker, Gen. Auditor.
The present seeming activity of the C. & A. company may be a bluff to gain concessions of some kind from Louisiana or other points but it certainly looks good for Slater at this writing.

The Eclipse of the Moon

Of course we read in all the papers about the good old moon in her latest capers,

How she, on the eventful Monday night,

Allowed herself to get in such a plight.

The comet too was doing its level best

To amuse the people who were looking west.

But away up there in the heavens so high,

Hung the silvery moon in the starlit sky.

But this faithful old orb with her usual bright face

Begun to frown and scowl as if in disgrace.

The twinkling little stars in their glee family sang together.

While some Reubens below wondered if

We were to have more foul weather.

For this planet of such fame and celestial birth

Was casting such a dark shadow over old mother earth.

An old hayseed said well it beats my times

But his great grand fathers brother by the name of "Grimes"

Had on just such a lookin night

Seed in the heavens a similar sight

While they were thus talking of the sight in the skies,

Fair Luna begun making her usual bright eyes.

Then they begun to realize that the moon on her trips,

Must now and then encounter what science calls an eclipse.

is often thought to be responsible for an infant's loss in weight or general poor health. The cause is that the child has worms. They get the nourishment in the food and the baby starves, actually starves. White's Cream Vermifuge expels the worms and nourishes the child, safe and sure. Price 25c sold by P. H. Franklin.

Those who attended the Grand Commandary meeting at Hannibal last week report a large attendance and a fine time. There were some 800 swords in line. St. Louis was represented by 150 Sir Knights and their wives. They came to Hannibal on a special steamboat the Cape Girardeau in charge of Captain W. H. Leyhe, a brother of L. F. Leyhe, of the Leyhe-Downing Clothing company. This steamer was their headquarters during their stay at the meeting and was also used to give the delegates a most enjoyable river excursion which was enjoyed by a large number. During the Commandary meeting an exhibition drill was given at Base ball park by Oriental Commandary No. 35 of Kansas City and they were presented with a silver cup in recognition of their skill. Those who went from Marshall, and others returning to their homes over the M. K. & T. had a quite unusual experience and a days delay owing to a series of wrecks on the road. It was a jolly crowd and they made the best of the situation.

NORTH GRAND PASS

Intended for last week

If you want to go to Joyville, take the smiling highroad past glad stone creek, keep to the right all the way. If you meet a poor woman with a basket carry it for her. When you meet a man say "Howdy". If you stomp your toe whistle. If it rains croon a song. If you are cold run a little and think about something that will make your heart glow. If the way is long, recall how you trudged every Sunday night up to your best girls house and never got tired. If a dog barks at you, don't throw a stone at him, snap your fingers at him and say "good doggie". If you feel like crying, you laugh instead. If you can do all this—you'll get to Joyville alright—and its about the only way you will get there.
